Senate Rackets Committee Corruption, Graft, Payoffs in

Vol. XXIV SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1957 No. 21

Election Gifts Implicate Two

Perhaps the most sordid and corrupt part of the recent Senate investigation at Seattle University was the shocking disclosure of the many cash and material gifts in last year's student body elections.

One of the key figures in this testimony was the well-known Seattle lawyer, Jim Murphy, of the law firm of Bungle, Bungle and Charge More. Mr. Murphy was campaign manager for the defeated candidate, Jim Plastino.

Mr. Plastino also figured prominently in the testimony, as it was revealed that during the campaign Mr. Murphy turned over to his candidate a huge bank which Mr. Plastino used indiscriminately during the remainder of the campaign.

In accusing Murphy the committee pointed out not only had he violated all ethical standards in carrying on Mr. Plastino's campaign but in testimony before the committee Mr. Murphy consistently evaded the answers to chief counsel's questions by reading his prepared statement:

"I must decline to answer because this committee lacks jurisdiction or authority under all principles of justice and equity." The Senator in charge of the committee stated that contempt charges are being considered.

After his loss in the election, testimony revealed, Plastino gradually muscled-in on the rackets and after promoting several drives and fund-raising campaigns he was able to buy with Student Union funds a new car, jewelry and has recently installed a new porcelain bathtub in the back yard of his Capitol Hill home.

When Plastino was picked up by the FDI he was circulating a letter to Student Union members for money to establish the Jim Plastino Portrait Fund, the portrait to stand in the Laurelhurst Villa.

Murphy, long-time king of the pin-ball world in the Northwest, was also questioned as to his activities in the United Candle Co. while he was employed in the Best-Wick division.

When reporters asked Mr. Murphy for a comment he quickly replied, "If these informants don't keep quiet I am really going to clammer down on these fellows."

Probers Raid Merry Crest Hall; Occupants To Be Indicted En Masse

WASHINGTON D.C. April 1, 1957 (Special Wire) Senator James B. McLowland (R Tenn.) disclosed that the House All-American Committee, in conjunction with the Senate Rackets Investigation Committee, has indicted en masse the proprietors and occupants of a women's residence hall located on the campus of Seattle University. The committee charged the group with seven counts of misconduct, misrepresentation of food (this charge was made by the Pure Food and Drug Administration), and conspiracy to undermine the morale of United States' draftbait.

The disclosure was made after an intensive investigation of Merry Crest Hall by an expert team composed of city, county, state and federal lawmen which lasted over a year.

Three apparent "organizers" of the ring were each charged with

"Wrong Door" Raid Shocks Campus Press

It has never been this newspaper's policy to rely on sensationalism, nor to try to sway campus opinion against an individual or group of individuals, but through a dire necessity this policy has been suspended.

Recently on his way through the campus looking for news, one of our reporters uncovered one of the most shameful stories to materialize on the SU campus; a story so strange, so lacking all human decency, that we have had to hire special detectives to unravel the mystery.

Late one evening during Homecoming Week our correspondent happened to be in the Student Union Building, on his way to the Spectator office to turn in his latest story. By mistake he walked into the ASSU office, and there to his complete amazement he found, not one but all three Petri sisters, Frank, Jesse and Mary, stuffing the Homecoming Queen ballot box!

Our reporter was so shocked that he was at a loss for words. The Petri girls immediately seized the reporter, bound and gagged him and stuffed him in a desk drawer. We found him yesterday, mumbling something about "freedom of the press."

He managed to tell us all about his heroic attempt to save himself from the "dangerous sisters," but as he frantically tried to get out of the room, Mary, the ringleader, slugged him with a miniature statue of Jim Plastino.

We gained the confidence of the gang and finally made a tape recording of the gang making plans for their next job.

Mary: All right, girls, let's see if we've got everything straight. Joan, let's hear what you're supposed to do.

Joan: First I go into the Sodality office and make sure that no one is there, then I call for Betty.

Betty: When I hear Joan's call I run in and take all the books the Sodality has collected for the Alaska Missions and carry them out to the car.

Mary: From there on I'll handle everything. I've already bribed Noel Brown so he won't give us any trouble, and I'm going to sell the books to a fuel company.

with "aiding and abetting illegal gambling pursuits and matchmaking."

Investigators noted that admission to the gambling den and night club could be obtained only after a careful scrutiny by the armed guard posted at the door of the establishment. The uniformed policeman was found to be a one-time member of a Chicago select "Goon Squad," which was largely responsible for many a known racketeer's rise to power.

When questioned about the Hall the officer stated, "I Must Decline To Answer Because The Committee Lacks Jurisdiction or Authority Under Articles 1, 2, and 3 of the Constitution and Further Because My Right And Privileges, Granted by the Constitution, as Supplemented by the Fourth and Fifth Amendments, Are Violated." (Spectator Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 1.—Fresh from their extensive investigation into America's labor unions, the Senate Rackets Committee today made public testimony given them by several prominent leaders of the International Brotherhood of Student Unions which was given in closed session during the past week.

Senator Garth Q. Squid, who has been in charge of the investigation, indicated that the probe centered mainly on the Seattle University Conference of Student Unions and that an the stock market with union funds.

When Martin, union president, was called before the committee he repeatedly answered the committee's questions with, "Nihil est in intellectu quod prius non fuerit in sensibus."

(In Seattle ex-union president Pete Ronerson was quoted as saying, "These hearings are indeed shocking. We haven't seen anything like this since I led the Fascist movement back in 1937 at the SU conference headquarters of the IBSU.")

All the leaders of the union said that no outside rackets had penetrated the IBSU until a well-known racketeer from Aberdeen, Wash., began to sell protection insurance to the numerous front organizations and in an effort to clean up the union President Martin ordered a pay-off to the Aberdeen syndicate.

The package was left in a tree by union treasurer Gene Fabre and was collected for the downstate organization by their secretary, a former Lee Street chorine.

The committee said it was unlikely that the officers of the union would be called back here for further testimony, as the Justice Department and the Bureau of Internal Revenue had planned immediate action on the union heads.

Senate to Probe Pie Syndicates

In Washington, Sen. Charlie McCarthy, assistant to the vice chairman of a sub-committee of the Senate Rackets Investigation Committee, disclosed today that the committee has telegraphed Seattle University requesting that two students make available their personal financial records.

Senator Charlie, well-known for his racket-busting hearings of 1954, stated that he is prepared to present an impressive and extensive array of evidence implicating these individuals as members of a highly organized "pie-smuggling ring."

The investigators reported that one night during the month of February the ring-leader, a man identified only as R. C., while on his way home from an "upholstered sewer," made the initial "heist" of ONE PIE.

The next day he informed the apparent "moll" of the mob of his easy mark. She returned the following evening for a more organized "filch" complete with get-away car and driver. The driver's name was not disclosed.

The Senator stated that he was not certain as to the extent of the ring, but he feels that a Senate hearing will shed much light on the subject. . . .

F.D.I. Arrests Registrar Staff

In a surprise move yesterday, the Federal Drawer of Investigation interrogated the Registrar's office staff in regard to falsified transcripts. The staff was charged with printing illegal transcripts at the Broadway Bookstore when students, registering this week, discovered discrepancies in classes, grade-point averages and transfer credits.

One of the high-ranking staff members was recently suspected of taking bribes in another department for padding teaching credentials but this charge was dismissed when no one could be found to testify against him. "This time," said a FDI spokesman, "we have students who will swear they got the wrong grades."

It has also been hinted that this same group has been printing Rainier Baseball Club contracts for distribution to promising ballplayers. However, no confirmation could be had on this last charge.

Miss Glenn, manager of the bookstore, said that business has fallen off forty per cent since FDI confiscation of the mimeograph machine.

Pending further investigation, the FDI has stationed agents around the office and declared it closed for business until an investigating committee can ascertain who is to blame.

Faced with a possible trial and conviction after committee hearings, one authority stated, "They can't put me in jail, fishing season opens in two weeks."

Campus beauty

Another step in the physical development of this university as one of the most attractive on the Coast merits the applause of all. Our campus has undergone many changes — a building is being erected where once ONLY faculty cars stood; flowers and trees adorn what used to be cracked sidewalks, but above all, order has been added to the line of glistening metal cans which grace the entrance to the Student Union Building.

Once the sight of these receptacles brought unhappy sighs from passing students but now only cheers are heard as crowds gather to admire "The New Look."

Even though the cans in their present condition are attractive, we suggest that further improvements might be made. First, a bright coat of paint would increase the notice given them. Second, the cans could be placed at strategic spots on the mall so that they could be used to full capacity.

If changes such as we suggest seem radical, then we must plead guilty. But, our suggestion is motivated by a desire to have a part in the development and beautification of this fine institution.

Guilty Bystander :

Recorded testimony

The following is an interview between Senator Carl Grunt (R., Wash.) and Michael Galvin, writer and troublemaker from Seattle University. Mr. Galvin has been asked to appear before Senator Grunt's committee, investigating scandal-mongering campus newspapers for many months. This is the first time that Mr. Galvin has agreed to appear before the committee.

SEN. GRUNT: Mr. Galvin, you are, are you not, a writer of sorts for the Seattle University campus newspaper?

MR. GALVIN: Yes, you could say that.

SEN. GRUNT: And haven't you made various accusations against members of the women's dormitory, on the SU campus?

MR. GALVIN: I believe in its broadest terms you could say that.

SEN. GRUNT: What caused you to do this, Mr. Galvin?

MR. GALVIN: I don't know, I just don't know, but if I had it to do over again I would stick to sports writing.

SEN. GRUNT: Mr. Galvin, we know for a fact that the girls at Merry Crest are planning to hang you.

MR. GALVIN: Just a small group of discontents. It really doesn't express true campus sentiment.

SEN. GRUNT: Also, Mr. Galvin, we have proof that you have been taking money from the Alaska Missions and using it to pay for your books and tuition.

MR. GALVIN: I only took what

I needed.

SEN. GRUNT: Is it true that . . .

MR. GALVIN: Yes, it is true.

SEN. GRUNT: Now tell me, Mr. Galvin, what do you plan to do about all the trouble you have caused?

MIKE GALVIN: Start being a nice guy.

SEN. GRUNT: And what do you consider being a nice guy?

MIKE GALVIN: I don't consider that matter relevant to this hearing.

SEN. GRUNT: Well, anyway, you've decided to behave?

MIKE GALVIN: Yes, I realize now that nothing ever comes of being a loudmouth.

SEN. GRUNT: That's swell. I believe that will be all, Mr. Galvin.

After the Senate hearing Mike Galvin was immediately encircled by correspondents from all over the world. Here are some of his comments:

QUESTION: Mr. Galvin, have you ever thought about running for any campus political office?

MR. GALVIN: Yes, I've been asked to run for president of Merry Crest.

QUESTION: Do you think you'll run?

MR. GALVIN: Yes, I do.

QUESTION: On what sort of a platform?

MR. GALVIN: Fewer rules and more "good times."

(At this point a Merry Crest girl rushed up to Mr. Galvin and told him that she thought he was a liar, a sneak, and a slob.)

MR. GALVIN: Thank you.

Shame on the SU campus

Do you often times hear a machine running in the back room of the Broadway Bookstore when you first walk in? Many of the more naive think this machine to be mimeographing tests and papers for professors and clubs on campus. However, we have just received the final and complete report of an investigation by Elvin P. Blackstone, private detective. In his report, Mr. Blackstone proves beyond a doubt that this machine turns out money from every country with the exception of: Wadi el Araba; Katmandu and Rhaetia. This currency can be picked up by anyone who has the pass word (and the price) for whatever country they intend to visit or invade.

This machine also turns out counterfeit transcripts for any of the students who are failing and who have monetary means. These grade reports are signed by Dr. George Kog who is "in" on all this graft.

Among those of the elite who patronize this corrupt shop are: Jon Castiglione (whose athletic scholarship funds come from this source); Paters Too Lousy and Rye Bone (who are planning to build a golfing green atop the Loyola Hilton); Martin Roberts (who is using these funds to keep alive since he cannot work during the school year) and Maurice Oakson (who bought himself a hi-fi tape recorder).

As to the use of the forged transcripts: how else do you suppose that Guiseppi Galluch got himself a 4.00 throughout his entire college career?????

This place is ridden with graft and corruption. We ask: is something going to be done? The students are made to suffer for the triviality of producing money and transcripts which are not free to all. The student must, often times, wait for as much as 6 weeks for books needed in classes because those who run the store are all too busy with money making projects. There must be a stop to this! But, this paper will not let you, the public, down. We shall carry on a campaign until this graft is stopped. We believe in the freedom of the press and will use it to stop such misuse of property.

I have a new recipe that I am dying to pass along to all your readers. It is called "Orderes a la Marine Room Garbage Can."

A Frustrated ID

Dear Emily Beast:

I have been having trouble with the question of etiquette around school. Here are some of my problems:

1. When you bring a girl into the Chieftain, should you steer her to the side doors or the middle ones? (The other day my girl walked through the glass, and I was just wondering which one was open.)

2. How can you politely ask a student standing in the middle of the hall to move? (You see, this guy was standing on my toes, and I guess he didn't like the idea of having to pick up his teeth one by one).

Have you any suggestions?

Lesser Seattle, Inc. Plans for Future

A wonderful new and refreshing type of civic organization has been receiving more and more attention around town the past few months. In fact it is growing to the extent that this reporter took it upon himself to look into the group and find out just what it is all about. I am well pleased with the results and so I think that I owe it to the readers to invite all of you to become a part of Lesser Seattle, Inc.

Lesser Seattle is composed mainly of people with small town ideals who advocate small town life . . . in a small town. Since I have become a member of this group I have noticed things which before seemed rather unimportant to me. I have noticed the trend in the Seattle area toward metropolitanism. Ask a person from Lake City where he's from, "Seattle," he'll say. It is the same with people from Bellevue, Bothell and Renton. We of Lesser Seattle, Inc., propose "Seattle for Seattleites!" "Down with Civic Pride!" And our motto is, "Let the Grass Grow in the Streets!!!"

Right now we have some red-hot projects on the fire which we feel will help considerably in checking civic growth. As you know, the State Toll Bridge Authority is presently considering two sites upon which to build an additional bridge across Lake Washington.

The first runs from Bellevue to Evergreen Point. Well, they can't use that one because our organization's president lives at Evergreen Point. The second is from Kirkland to Sand Point and they can't use that because Uncle Sam lives at Sand Point.

Another completely ridiculous proposition is to parallel the existing floating bridge . . . ridiculous because Lesser Seattle is presently lobbying to have the existing span ripped out because it destroys the primitive beauty of the lake.

Lesser Seattle has offered the Toll Bridge Authority an alternate proposal. We propose to pave Lake Washington!!! This would give all the communities on the East Side an equal opportunity to ply the Seattle tourist trade.

Of course there is slight dissension within Lesser Seattle itself as to whether to pave the lake with blue cement or green cement. The "bluites" maintain that blue cement with simulated waves would be much more realistic even though it is a bit more expensive. The proponents of green claim that we should be in keeping with our state government's wishes to "keep Washington Green."

There is another faction that asks how our youngsters are ever going to learn how to swim if we pave the lake, but any halfwit knows that is what swimming pools are for.

Another important project undertaken by Lesser Seattle is the employment of a full-time unpublicity director. Jacques Garden holds this position at the present and is doing a bang-up job of it. His duties consist mainly of keeping tabs on our Seattle newspapers and if any stories are submitted that threaten to excite civic pride or enhance the name of our city throughout the nation . . . it is up to him to kill them before they reach the public. . . .

It is Mr. Garden who is doing such a fine job of pacifying the "Cocktails," a group of Seattle hydroplane enthusiasts who are against the paving of Lake Washington since that would leave them no place to hold their Gold Cup Races. They want to do away with bridges over the lake altogether and teach everyone on the east side of the lake how to swim.

Jacques has offered to leave the Sammamish Slough open for the races and suggests that since the Blue Angels and the Thunderbirds were said to be the highlights of the races last year, two huge cement pylons, one at Kenmore and one at Seward Park, should be erected. Then they could forget about their races and just have those groups come out and put on a terrific air-show. Good thinking, Mr. Garden. . . .

PORTZEBIE!!!!

By REGAL BROOM

SAN BURN-DINO, April 1, 1957

ITEM: The problem of obtaining national recognition for Pacific Coast athletes is becoming increasingly difficult. Our many impressive collegiate stars don't have the chance given the Eastern ball players to make the all-American teams of nationally syndicated magazines and wire services. Having given this problem much thought, we have come up with a solution.

COMMENT: Let's suppress scholastics in our Pacific Coast colleges and universities and emphasize more, our athletic programs. We feel that it is time that athletics got back into the picture where they belong. If our collegiate athletes were permitted to endorse cigarets, having soap, razor blades, after-shave cream and deodorant as are the professional athletes, we feel that their appearance in the nationally syndicated ads would greatly enhance their chances of national recognition.

ITEM: We are very pleased to hear that our old friend and associate from the First Hill Mr. Bob Klug has recently made a double purchase from the University. Bob bought his diploma and the Seattle University memorial gym in a package deal. Bob says that he plans to rename the gym Klug Memorial Gymnasium and invites all students to come over and walk on the floor with their street shoes on at their earliest convenience.

COMMENT: This is a tremendously big hearted gesture on Bob's part and if you remember this reporter predicted 8 years ago that Bob would be a success some day. Congratulations, boy . . .

ITEM: The Chieftain Nine are out in force on the diamond again reports Paul (Garbidge-Arm) Dempsey the newly appointed baseball press man. Paul discloses that he accepted the position in addition to his mound chores in order to assure himself of first mention in all press releases. He disclosed that the Chieftain Nine is fundamentally weak in all fielding positions but hopes that a strong pitching staff will make the difference this season. Coach Giuseppe Franconi, reported to be the best-dressed coach in baseball, had hoped that bringing the boys out two months early for gymnastic workouts would strengthen them for the season.

COMMENT: It's heartening to know that a group of young men with courage such as this will be heralding our fair city's name to such far flung points in the state as Tacoma, Grays Harbor, Everett and Bellevue. Baseball enthusiasm at Seattle University has been tremendous since coach Guiseppi Franconi announced that the school plans to build a modern stadium to seat ten thousand where the gravel patch is presently located at 11th and Pine.

ITEM: This reporter was very much concerned with the recent invitation received by Seattle University to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta. I think it a bit unfair that such an infant crew as Seattle University should receive an invitation when the Land-Grant Institution in our city, after rowing all the way down the Pacific Coast through the Panama Canal up to the Hudson River, under the leadership of Coach All-brick-sun, was shunned by the IRA. This, in my estimation was a gross miscarriage of justice.

COMMENT: The Seattle University formed a rowing team out of pure spite. Their present coach, Mr. John Talevich, was selected only because he was reported to have a great deal of pull. It would have been more sportsmanlike of that school to stay entirely out of the shell game. But what is done is done, and I can do no more than say Good Luck . . . crumbs!!

CHICKEN CHATTER

. . . Glad to see S. U. really pushing this sports bit . . . we hear they have an entry in the Bendix Cup Air Race . . . the city's other leading university reports that they have secured a budget allotment which will definitely permit them to place an entry in the Gold Cup Race next summer . . . the Miss Spendthriftway . . . see where Padre Ray Bone is burning up the pinballs instead of the pins at the bowling alley . . . POME . . . Is Baylor best, is Boin the most . . . one's All-American and All-Coast . . . the sporting world chose one, I find . . . but still I can't make up my mind . . . we hear that Fr. The dull, drab, lifeless story of RHODE ISLAND

SU top-seeded in I.R.A. regatta

CENSORED

Seattle University's Student Athletic Board has unanimously voted to accept a recent bid to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association's annual regatta at Syracuse, N.Y., in June.

The bid was extended to the Sailing Club of Seattle University, last Friday, by D. G. Peckworth, president of the IRA and assistant coach to hydroplane driver Lee Sho'nuff.

The Chieftain crewmen will replace the Huskies from the University of Washington, who have traditionally been the powerhouse in the IRA "Poughkeepsie" race. The Huskies have been suspended from IRA regatta because the football team couldn't keep its head above water financially.

The acceptance of the IRA bid by the Student Athletic Board marks the first time that the Chieftain crews have competed in crew races. Bids to national meets, thus far, have been restricted to post-season casaba tournaments, usually of a one-game duration. Crew should be their specialty because it only takes one race.

Coach John Talevich announced that expenses to defray the cost of replacing the University of Washington Huskies at the IRA meet will be assumed by the Downtown Athletic Association, which has been rather generous in defraying the expenses of local athletics and athletes.

The payment of expenses (clothes, pin-ball money, taxi fare, night club activities, etc.) by the Downtown Athletic Association will not in any way endanger the amateur standing of the athletes.

In addition to sending a varsity crew to the regatta, John Castellani, Seattle University athletic director, has announced that the Faculty Athletic Board has approved a recommendation to send a Papoose scull for a short race.

Anyone interested in watching the Chieftain crews in their workouts are asked to report to the foot of Madison at 1 o'clock each afternoon where a special TV hook-up will be provided by ING-TV and Regal Broom, former Huskies crew supporter who has transferred his affiliations to the Chieftains' crew until the beginning of the next basketball season.

Goodnight, Tommy!

Solution Sought For Sports State

The organization of a new club on campus was recently announced by a forward-looking group of co-eds. The announced intentions of the club, named the "We're Eligible and Like Sports Society," is to alleviate the unnecessary situation in the Sports Department which necessarily reflects on SU co-eds.

The problem is this: There are three bachelor coaches on campus—John "The Duke" Castellani, Vince "The Racket" Cassetta and Joe "The Bat" Facon.

After extensive research, the group decided that since this problem is peculiar to the SU campus, no precedent has ever been set on how to cope with a situation of its nature. Hence, after consultation with the Dean of Women, the Athletics Secretary's office and the Sociology Department, the girls banded together in the hope that the blight could be removed.

First activity of the "We're Eligible and Like Sports Society" is an "All Sports Round-Robin" planned for Monday, April 1, at 1 p.m. in the gym, to which all SU co-eds are invited.

In a joint statement, The Duke, The Racket and The Bat commented: "We understand the embarrassment to SU girls that results from our status and we regret it. Therefore we will do everything in our power to cooperate with the WELSS and would like to see each and every co-ed join us at the gym today so that together we may lick this problem."

Brandy Chucks Cop Cup, Foulbath Sparks Victory

• TOBY KIBBITS

The Brandy Chucks, who have a season record of no wins and 17 losses, filed a complaint against the Seattle University Intramural Board. Mr. Front Page was deeply concerned with this complaint. The complaint read: "We've been robbed. Throughout the season we have been unjustly burdened with fixed referees. It seems to us that we should have a rematch against the intramural champion, ORCT. We guarantee results." This petition was made by Gary Slob.

After much consideration Front Page went to Tommy Nugut for advice. They both decided to give the Chucks their wish.

On the night of March 14, the Brandy Chucks marched onto the floor with fire in their eyes. They were bound and determined to clear their 17-loss record. They were well-prepared for the game. They hired their own referees, offering many choice objects for excellent decisions in their favor. All on the Chuck team withdrew from school and practiced fervently 19½ hours a day. They all attained Mohawk haircuts so they could psychologically mow down the ORCT who themselves only had crewcuts. Fifteen hundred musicians were in attendance, fatally drowning out the ORCT's meager 30-piece band.

As the game got under way, Bobby Liedone was fouled out. Liedone was the ORCT star. Gary Slob provided Bob Tonto a ladder at their own basket, in which he was to be the evening's big gunner. Mauri Foulbath was the only player throughout the game to be awarded a foul. This was done when he accidentally tipped over one of the referees' bundles of cash.

This game was the deciding factor as to which team would be top in the Intramural League. The ORCT did their best but failed to score any points in the first half, since there was a half-inch piece of glass over the basket hoop. The score read much better for the Brandy Chucks. By feeding Mauri Foulbath, the score jumped rapidly to 105-0 at the end of the half.

Jim Gunners, another ORCT star, came out of the locker room early and was technically fouled out of the game for knocking over the Chuck ladder that led to their basket.

As the second half got under way, the ORCT could only field one eligible player. Gary Killer. Killer finally talked the Brandy Chucks into borrowing their ladder. The Chucks dropped in 53 more points, and carried the ladder down to the ORCT hoop in the closing minutes of the game. Killer could bucket only 26 points before the final buzzer sounded.

This game gave the Brandy Chucks the honorary championship title and paved the way for more interesting games in the future.

AFROTC Command Orders SU Base

It was recently announced by the Office of the President that there will be an Air ROTC Unit staffed by Regular AF cadre here beginning next fall.

Col. Steve Canyon, of "Himalaya Hump" fame, will command the new garrison, which will consist of two other officers and 128 enlisted men.

Although it has not been determined where the air-force offices will be placed, their numerous flying paraphernalia and teaching aids, consisting of 3 night-fighters, one "box-car" transport, one B-50, and a de-activated atomic warhead will be housed in Warren West Hall. A guided-missile launching ramp will soon be built where the present ROTC offices stand.

In keeping with a "public service" policy recently announced by Gen. Nathin Twineng, new head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, helicopter service will be initiated next year for the benefit of students in outlying districts. They will be driven by basic air-students as part of their training program.

Treasurer's Office Fund Investigated; Students Aroused

Funds, in the amount of several thousands dollars, have been reported missing from the Seattle University treasury. A bank audit was ordered immediately, but because of confused records, auditors are unable to decide just where the money disappeared.

No one has been accused of being guilty of theft, but of course personnel in the Treasurer's office are being held responsible until evidence is brought forth to clear them.

The administration has offered no public statement except, "No comment," at this time.

Student and faculty opinion was sought concerning this shocking event and the following quotations show the horror and disbelief typical of the student-faculty reaction.

Dorothy Jordan: We will have to pay it back, of course. I guess we had better have a complete investigation. Somebody must have a bolt loose.

Denny Dahline: I don't believe it. How could anyone abscond with that amount? It shows poor book-keeping. Perhaps a new system should be set up. I wouldn't condemn anyone till adequate information has been brought forth.

Jerry Lupton: I find it hard to believe. My money! Now we know why they increased tuition. It would have to be someone in the treasury. Are they sure it's not a mistake? I don't see how it's possible. This will definitely hurt the reputation of the University.

Bob Krull: Well, I wouldn't doubt it.

Fr. Kane: I must decline to answer because this committee lacks jurisdiction or authority under Articles 1, 2 and 3 of the Constitution and, further because of my rights and privileges granted by Amidst the testimony given to the Senate Rackets Committee during their probe at Seattle University came the disclosure of a secret "gold machine" that has been operating in the basement of the Engineering Building for some years.

By producing gold cheaply the Engineering Department is able to pipe the material to a special fishing boat tied up on the Seattle water front at the foot of Madison Street. The machine and the storage room on the fishing boat are connected by a pipe which runs through an abandoned cable shaft under the Madison Street thoroughfare.

After taking on a full load the fishing boat makes a rendezvous with a tramp freighter, the Brunco Trader, off Port Townsend which in turn delivers the machine's

Pauline Horst: Well, the price of gas has gone up, you know.

Cathy Corbett: Had I known this was the type of administration, I never would have run for office!

SPECS OF NEWS

The Spurs and Intercollegiate Knights will meet on Saturday, April 6, 1957, at 6 a.m. to begin whitewashing the Liberal Arts Building. All members are reminded to appear in uniform. In case of any accidents the white-wash is of good quality and will cover any soiled areas already existing on the uniforms.

The Underwater Lore Club will hold its first meeting on campus April 5, 1957, at 7 p.m. in the Student Lounge. You need not own a deep-sea diving outfit to belong to this organization, just web-feet. If you are interested in obtaining the necessary equipment it can be bought for a reasonable price in the bookstore.

Any students having dirty aprons, towels or linen are reminded that there is a free cleaning service located in Rm. 330 of Merry Crest Hall. There is no guarantee, however, that you will receive your own cleaning in return, or that it will be clean.

The Seattle University House-mothers will hold their annual reunion on Sunday, April 7, 1957, at 9 p.m. They will meet on the second floor of Merry Crest Hall. They will play their usual games of "Lights Out," "Flashlight," and "Campus or Demerit."

A field trip for the ASSU officers is being planned to McNeil Island, Walla Walla, Alcatraz and other points of interest along the Pacific Coast. If you are interested please leave your name with trip chairman Nutty Nutsmith.

All those girls that are planning to fly this summer and want to do it economically are invited to attend a lecture which is to be given this afternoon in Rm. 123 by that well-known traveler and lady fowl-hunter, Miss M. A. Onorah-toe.

Parking Problem Before Senators

On a tour of the Seattle University campus each morning the assistant to the assistant of the Rackets Investigating Committee decided a probe was necessary to investigate the lazy attitude of the students.

"After a number of interviews and much research our counsel found that the students were having much difficulty finding places to park, necessitating long hikes to and from school," stated Senator Garth H. Squid (Wash.), who is in charge of the investigating committee.

The committee, acting purely as an advisory board in this matter, offered the following suggestions:

- Warren West Hall should be used for student parking. The entire top floor could be used to accommodate sports cars and the ground floor be used for the bigger cars—Austins and Volkswagens—and for those with big-big cars, the gym could be used, although a slightly higher fee would be required here.
- Abolish parking tickets.
- Walk to school.
- Establish a small runway down the middle of 11th Avenue working similar to that of the coffee tray in the Chieftain, which gradually would sink into the street as the cars moved on the runways. Parking then would be no problem. (The Senator did not elaborate on how one would get his car out if it were on the bottom level.
- Build a parking lot.

"Famous Sayings"

Well Famous Sayings doesn't have a winner this time. The person believed by the Spectator to have submitted the first correct entry has been disqualified. The Spectator regrets to report that this person was found stuffing the ballot box with pages from "Bartlett's Quotations." Tch tch. But we do want to say—keep trying, Wayne Angevine—you'll win this contest yet!

Our last week's prize of one month's subscription to the Spectator will be added to this week's grand slam jackpot prize of a one-way ticket to Tacoma, complete with a guided tour by Dick Vargo.

- Last week's quotations were:
- "With charity for none, with malice toward all." Michael Toulouse.
 - "People who live in glass houses should dress in the basement." Oakie Oaksmith.
 - "Before you act — THINK!" John Talevich.

4. "The world must be made safe for the Democrats." Ann O'Donnell

5. "Politics — phooey!" Don D. Wright.

Famous Sayings will be a little easier this week. The answers are provided in the next column. But you'll have to match them yourself.

- "We have not yet begun to fight."
 - "All for one, and one for all."
 - "Hi!"
 - "You are going to see the greatest intellectual renaissance of all time."
 - "Bring back the Cadillac, Mary, all is forgiven."
 - "One!"
 - "If we don't win that primary by 250 votes we have to get out and campaign!"
 - "It's not the sinner I love but the sin."
 - "... with walking teeth."
- Remember, all entries must be returned to the Spectator office by 12 a.m., Monday, April 1st. In conclusion, may we add an encouraging quotation now famous on campus—"If at first you don't succeed—quit!"
